PROMOTING JUSTICE • PROTECTING RIGHTS • EMPOWERING HUMANITY

INTRODUCTION

In today's world, the call for personal rights and freedoms resonates louder than ever. Issues ranging from privacy and clean resources to protection from discrimination and violence underscore the ongoing challenges faced by humanity. Despite global opposition and international efforts, human rights violations persist unabated, fuelled by racism, political unrest, religious intolerance, and other forms of injustice. Established in 1992, the HURT (Human Rights) Foundation emerged with a mission to enhance human lives and alleviate suffering. Collaborating with jurists, academics, and social reformers, as well as various welfare organizations, the Foundation addresses human rights violations through educational initiatives and national-level conferences. By raising public awareness and advocating for justice, the Foundation strives to foster a free and equitable society.

OBJECTIVES

The Foundation's flagship program, a 3-month Certificate Program in Human Rights, delves into the philosophy, evolution, and critical issues of human rights law and politics.
